

Toxic Substances Information Directory and Health Effects Resource Guide

Michigan Department of Community Health and Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry

INTRODUCTION

This resource guide was developed to provide health professionals with names and telephone numbers of individuals, organizations, agencies, and institutions who specialize in providing information regarding environmental and toxicological issues. This is not meant to be an exhaustive compilation of resources but rather a quick guide to where information can be obtained.

Your suggestions for improving this directory are welcome. If you would like to suggest changes or additions, please use the attached form on page .

NOTE: This resource guide was supported in whole through funds from the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act Trust Fund under a cooperative agreement with the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry, Public Health Service, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. Updated in January, 1998.

TOXICOLOGICAL DATABASES

The following database directory briefly describes some of the computer-based information available to biomedical, public health, and environmental researchers. The sources listed offer online computer searching, computer datafiles available on floppy disk, magnetic tape or CD-ROM. For information about access to each database, researchers should contact the database producer or the vendor at the addresses listed below.

MEDLARS (MEDical Literature and Retrieval System) Computerized system of 32 databases, run by the National Library of Medicine, which contain about 13 million citations. Contact: MEDLARS, 8600 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20894, (800) 638-8480.

RTECS (Registry of Toxic Effects of Chemical Substances)

Contains information on more than 112,000 substances including published toxicity, mutagenicity, teratogenicity, carcinogenicity, and irritation measurements. Vendor: See MEDLARS.

HSDB (Hazardous Substance Data Bank)

More than 4,300 records on toxic effects, environmental fate, and safety and handling of hazardous chemicals. Vendor: See MEDLARS.

MEDLINE

Major biomedical database in the MEDLARS system. The 953,000 records, containing over 8 million bibliographic citations, come from 3,500 international biomedical journals, and include publications from 1966 to present. Vendor: See MEDLARS.

CCRIS (Chemical Carcinogenesis Research Information System)
